

FOR THE JOURNAL OF COMMERCE.

A CARD. — The public, including the “New York Journal of Commerce,” are informed that we are silk merchants and keep an extensive and well-assorted stock of goods, which we offer to responsible buyers on reasonable terms. As individuals, we entertain our own views on the various religious, moral, and political questions of the day, which we are neither afraid nor ashamed to declare on all proper occasions. But we wish it distinctly understood that our goods, and not our principles, are on the market. The attempt to punish us as merchants for the exercise of our liberty as citizens we leave to the judgment of the community.
